

ARTICLE APPEARED
ON PAGE 9A

USA TODAY
15 NOVEMBER 1982

WORLD

USA TODAY'S SPECIAL REPORTS FROM ABROAD

Britain: Prime may have scuttled satellite

LONDON — Spy and sex offender Geoffrey Prime gave the Soviets secrets of a highly sophisticated satellite surveillance system, The Sunday Times reported. Prime compromised what was called the Byeman project to the point that U.S. intelligence chiefs doubted it could be salvaged. The project was designed to eavesdrop on any part of a recently installed Soviet microwave network — from talks between Politburo members to radio conversations between tank commanders in the field.